

Tsung Tsai

33 Kenneth St. Apt 5-7B, West Haven, CT 06516

(475) 227-5292. ttsai@newhaven.edu

Education

University of New Haven

PhD in Criminal Justice – Cybercrime and Cybersecurity (ongoing)

Masters of Science in Criminal Justice – Concentration in Computer Forensics (2014)

University of Maryland

Bachelors of Arts in Criminology and Criminal Justice (2008)

Research Interests

- Cyber Forensics
- Application of Criminological Theories in Cyberspace
- Cybercrime Evolution and Patterns
- Computer and Cybersecurity

Experience

Independent Research at the University of New Haven | Current

- Currently researching the applicability of self-control theory and social learning theory on malware victimization under the guidance of Dr. David Myers and fellow dissertation committee members.

Co-researcher in a Study of Prosecutor Office Experiences with Online Nonconsensual Pornography | 2019-2020

- Together with Dr. Catherine D. Marcum (Appalachian State University), Dr. George E. Higgins (University of Louisville), and Jeffrey Sedlacek (Appalachian State University), the collaborative study investigated the current management of revenge pornography and sextortion cases by county, and district prosecutors' offices.

Lecturer at the University of New Haven | 2015 – 2017

- Taught network security and data protection at the undergraduate (CJST 4524) and master's level (CJST 6604).

Publications

Marcum, C. D., Higgins, G. E., Tsai, T. M., & Sedlacek, J. (2020). Exploration of Prosecutor Experiences with Non-consensual Pornography. Deviant Behavior, 1-13.