

Photos courtesy of UNH

'Class at the Court'

A West Haven Public Schools student takes a turn at a basketball hoop at the University of New Haven Jan. 13 during the annual Class at the Court event, a special program for West Haven fourth-graders. The trip, held in partnership with UNH in an effort to expose students to college at a young age, turns the school's basketball court into a classroom, as students learn about math and fractions using basketball. Students work with UNH basketball players throughout the day, visit areas on campus, and meet professors. Groups of fourth-graders on the Jan. 13 visit rotated between different locations at the school, ending the visit with lunch in a UNH cafeteria and an opportunity to watch the first half of the women's basketball game.